Museum of Scales and Balances

The Museum of Scales and Balances, which is part of the Culture sector (see dedicated sheet), was born in an area that has been producing scales since 1860 and which still today boasts numerous companies in the field of weighing, measurement and precision instruments.

The exhibition rooms tell two millennia of measurement history through over 1,500 instruments and at the same time fits directly into the reality of the territory thanks to the strong connection with companies in the sector and with schools.

The entire urban territory is involved in this mission, so much so that it leads to the name of Campogalliano: "City of Scales" located at the entrances to the town.

The activities are managed in collaboration with Libra 93 ETS association.

The Museum deals with:

- consultancy, research, publications, conferences, reviews and temporary exhibitions
- educational activities for schools
- dissemination activities for families with children

- technical-scientific experimental laboratories
- initiatives in external locations in collaboration with other bodies and entities
- relationships with the main international associations of collectors of scales and weights

- cultural events and initiatives to promote typical local food and wine products

DEMOGRAPHIC ANALYSIS, GEOGRAPHICAL DATA

The municipality of Campogalliano has an area of 35.19 km² and is located at an altitude of 43 meters

In the center of the village resides 82% of the population. The remaining part lives, instead, in the hamlets of Saliceto Buzzalino (8%) and Panzano (10%).

Resident population data can be consulted on the Istat portal, constantly updated (<https://demo.istat.it/>, “demographic balance”)

Further information on the demographic and socioeconomic situation is provided in the DUP Documento Unico di Programmazione (Single Programming Document), prepared annually, which is the primary strategic and operational planning tool for Italian local authorities. The document is published on the institutional website in the Transparent Administration / General Provisions / General Acts / Strategic Management Planning Documents section.

Historical elements

Campogalliano, probably already the seat of a “terramaricola” civilization in the Bronze Age (characterized by the typical villages of stilts placed on some highlands in the alluvial areas), perhaps owes its name to the settlement, in the IV century BC, of Gallic populations along the river Secchia, an important river route lapping the municipal territory; the name of the locality is, in fact, an adaptation of “Campo dei Galli”.

After the submission of the local population by the Romans, the territory of the Galli Boi is annexed to the Roman province of Cisalpine Gaul. Around the eleventh century it is documented the existence of a fortified village, surrounded by a moat and placed on a small hill (the so-called Motta, the current hill of Montagnola), home to a castrum and a parish dedicated to San Ambrogio, of which no trace has remained.

The town center developed immediately outside the walls, close to the castle. The village was the center of civil and economic life, where merchants and artisans carried out their activities. Crossed the communal period, during the fourteenth and fifteenth century, given its strategic position, Campogalliano is contested by the different families of feudal lords of the territory until the feud, mainly linked to the family of Roberti di San Martino in Rio, enters the hands of the cadet branch of the Este di San Martino, remaining there until 1767. The castle of Campogalliano, a fortified village, gradually leaves room for a villa of delights for the Dukes of Este and then fell, over the centuries, into disuse.

The town, mainly agricultural destination characterized by small independent funds, then lives the changes of the Napoleonic period and the following Kingdom of Italy, gradually expanding from Piazza Castello, up to the present dimensions and to include the hamlets of Panzano and Saliceto Buzzalino.

In the course of the 20th century the change was rapid and, after the first cooperatives, consortia and wineries, after the

Interpretative drawing of the “Montagnole” highlands in the second half of the century. XVIII

(Image taken from the volume: AA.VV., Campogalliano. Dagli insediamenti preistorici all'età delle macchine, edited by Giulia Luppi and Cristina Sola, Comune di Campogalliano, 1996, p. 19 (drawing C. Beneventi))

Second World War, the first industrial structures were developed for the conservation and marketing of agricultural products and the vocation as a city of scales was strengthened after the foundation of the "Crotti Bilance" company in 1861. The construction of the A1 motorway first, then at the beginning of the seventies of the A22, the presence of the offices of the Customs and the project of the expansion banks of the Secchia in the eighties, with the birth of the Curiel lakes area, with a naturalistic and sporting vocation, mark a further evolution of the city that thus assumes the current appearance.

Campogalliano is therefore not only the city of scales, but it is also an important industrial and logistical hub as well as a rich and interesting natural site.

Artistic, architectural, cultural excellence

Campogalliano is famous as 'City of scales' and offers tourists and guests passing through the obligatory appointment with the Museum of scales and balances, which is intended for a specific information sheet.

As well as a separate card is reserved for Curiel Lakes, a beautiful landscape oasis of rare charm and beauty. However, the municipality is able to offer visitors other artistic, cultural and historical excellence that are summarized here.

PIAZZA CASTELLO ORATORIO SAN ROCCO CIVIC TOWER

Piazza Castello is the very first nucleus of the current city. Behind the walls that protected the medieval castrum, located on the small hill currently occupied by the Montagnole Park, there was a small village formed by the houses of settlers, artisans and merchants that gravitated around the castle, which was accessed by crossing a bridge. On the north side of Piazza Castello stands the Oratorio di San Rocco, a small one-nave building whose foundation dates back to 1697, in the place where there was a private house purchased for that purpose by the Community. Abandoned for a long time, following a careful restoration by the Municipality, which has owned it since 1983, the oratory is now home to cultural events.

The access to the medieval village was marked by a fortified building, equipped with a tower, which was exactly in the position of the current civic tower. The square-based tower built presumably during the sixteenth century measures 17 meters high; on the south facade there is a mechanical clock, connected to a bell, whose first location is not certain but which was replaced in 1751 due to a fault. Since 1983 a new clock has replaced the old mechanism.

PIAZZA VITTORIO EMANUELE II CHURCH OF SANT'ORSOLA

Piazza Vittorio Emanuele is currently the city center; on it overlook the two main municipal buildings, built at the beginning of the twentieth century in a sober and composed neoclassical style, and the parish church of Sant'Orsola.

Initially located outside the small circle of the ancient village, the church of Sant'Orsola was built in the second half of the fifteenth century and was the fulcrum of the city expansion towards the east, supplanting in a short time the small church of Sant'Ambrogio that was near the fortified castrum. Later enlarged, the parish church showed a plan with three naves with interiors in Mannerist and Baroque style. In 1795 it was completely rebuilt maintaining the general layout but assuming elements of classical-renaissance style internally and neoclassical elements in the facade. The church underwent a further transformation between 1830 and 1859 designed by Francesco Vandelli, architect of the Duke of Modena, arriving at the current appearance.

PIAZZA DELLA BILANCIA FOUNTAIN OF BIOLCHINI PAVING OF VERONESI

Piazza Bilancia is a place of art and history that includes two artistic works of particular value: the pavement decorated in abstract geometric style by Luigi Veronesi and the sculptural fountain by Raffaele Biolchini.

The pavement designed by Luigi Veronesi ideally divides the square into a triangular area on the left, a circular at the right end, at the fountain, and a rhomboidal starting from the center, all animated by a sense of dynamism and vitality that confirms the modern vocation of the place to be a center of evolution and development towards the outside. The sculptor Raffaele Biolchini has, instead, created the fountain by choosing a natural subject, deeply new in the interpretation, a little enigmatic and evocative of that past that lives in the new square: a leaf floating on the water, on which a frog is laid, three bronze leaves that soar out of the water and on which a turtle walks and finally a balance with equal arms that evokes the idea of balance, so representative of Campogalliano.

ORATORY OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN OF SASSOLA

This small sanctuary was built in 1745, following some apparitions of the Virgin Mary to Domenica, a little girl born in Rubiera, replacing a pillar bearing the effigy of the so-called "Madonna della Sassola", recipient of a growing popular cult since 1600; the pillar had, in turn, replaced an oak tree on which a table had been fixed, with the image of the Madonna, found on the banks of the Secchia. The small church, complete with a small bell tower, is a Greek cross with a small hemispherical dome and flanked by two small chapels; particularly rich and interesting is the collection of votive offerings exposed inside.

G. MARCONI PRIMARY SCHOOL AND "E. BERSELLI" LIBRARY

The G. Marconi Primary school, built in 1975, is an important work of the Friulian architect Romano Botti, realized with the collaboration of the architect Margherita Marzi Anglani. The building, entirely constructed of exposed, raw reinforced concrete, was immediately recognized internationally as an example of modernity in school construction.

The articulation between indoor and outdoor spaces, between classrooms and common spaces, is realized with modular elements and simple and playful geometries with bright colors and was born with the idea of encouraging educational experimentation and stimulating the expressive skills of students. The complex also includes the premises of the municipal library dedicated to the great journalist and writer Edmondo Berselli, born in Campogalliano.

“Eugenio Curiel” Lakes

This area, confidentially called “laghetti”, is one of the most important attractions of Campogalliano. For further information:

<https://www.laghicurielcampogalliano.it/>

Area of great landscape-naturalistic interest, located on the southern limit of the municipality of Campogalliano, near the river Secchia, consists of several large basins formed as a result of the extraction of gravel, within which surface water. Today it is part of the “Parco Riserva Naturale della Cassa di espansione del fiume Secchia”, located in the immediate vicinity and born with the main purpose of regulating floods. Walkable, this area is particularly popular for spending free time outdoors; suitable for beautiful walks, for practicing birdwatching and nature photography. The lakes also offer spaces for many sports activities and there are plenty of places for refreshments and picnics.

The expansion tank, built in the late 1970s, and the subsequent establishment of the Nature Reserve in 1996, promoted the development of a rich and characteristic flora of the humid and fluvial environments. The habitat, in continuous and rapid evolution, is ideal for many animal species, especially birds related to aquatic and marsh environments.

Among the sedentary species are the Moorhen, the Coot, the Mallard, the Kingfisher. In spring the area is populated by numerous species that return to the park after wintering in warmer places: some of these nest (e.g. Great Grebe, Tuffetto, Common Tern, Bee-eater). Many species of Anatids can be observed (Codone, Marzaiola, Moriglione) and not infrequently of the raptors (Black kite, Marsh hawk, Royal harrier, Sparrowhawk, Osprey, Kestrel).

Also present are the Italian Knight, the Snipe, the Fighter. In the wetlands there are many amphibians together with various reptiles.

The fish fauna also consists of native species such as Carp, Pike, Tench.

To better defend this heritage is obviously prohibited hunting, regulated fishing while are available for visitors two observation points, specially screened.

Rich is also the flora of the area, where the forest seems to recover its spaces. Willow and poplar are being born again, there are black alders, country maples and ash trees. Widely present also hawthorn, rosehip and elder. Near the water, you can see traditional plants of the area such as the reed and the cane along with water lilies. There are also many medicinal plants, dandelion, mallow, horsetail and mint.

The Botanical Garden of the Rare Marsh Herbs and the Garden of Ancient Fruits, which are located near Casa Berselli, in via Albone 14, are also free to visit. The botanical garden is dedicated to rare or threatened floristic lowland species. The orchard instead has a planting of 60 ancient native cultivars of plains and various types of vineyards, alternating with native arboreal plant essences (maple, elm, etc.) for the realization of the typical “Emilian planted” for educational purposes.

Panzano and Saliceto Buzzalino.

To promote an active and constructive participation with the municipal administration, in the hamlets can be formed consultations with functions of initiative, consultation, knowledge and supervision on the performance of services and activities of the municipal administration.

They have the task of identifying the needs and requirements of the fractions, indicating the priorities and proposing to the Administration the most appropriate interventions and solutions.
